

Military Leadership Award Col. Judith Robinson, Garrison Commander, Fort Detrick, Maryland

Col. Judith Robinson's tenure as Fort Detrick Garrison Commander has been marked by her tireless efforts to develop, enhance and sustain partnerships not only inside the gates of Fort Detrick, Walter Reed Army Medical Center and the Glen Haven housing area but in the wider community outside as well. As a result of her commitment to inclusion, outreach and partnership, the legacy of Col. Robinson as Fort Detrick's garrison commander will be the continued recognition of Fort Detrick and Glen Haven as "Communities of Excellence."

As project executive of the Fort Detrick/WRAMC military housing privatization project, Robinson's leadership has achieved operational efficiencies, sustainable new units, renovation of existing housing units and the creation of one of the best all-around gated communities for service members in the Washington region.

Robinson's leadership has extended beyond military housing, as demonstrated by the enduring partnerships she has created with an array of private sector entities dealing with quality of life initiatives for soldiers, families and civilians; workforce training; business process reviews; infrastructure development and maintenance; and customer service.
